WELCOME

to the St Andrews Law Review

Founded in 2020, the St Andrews Law Review was established with the aim of creating a community for aspiring legal professionals. As the first publication of its kind, it serves as a platform for individuals to discuss their interest in law and engage in thought-provoking and informative discourse.

A rapidly changing industry, law is the perfect backdrop to engage critically with the world around us. The last year, in particular, has highlighted the crucial and pertinent nature of law and have sparked an array of discussions amongst our community. At this time, the Law Review has served as a means for some of the brightest and most ambitious students in the United Kingdom to present alternative perspectives on key legal matters which impact our generation.

As a young and rapidly-developing publication, we are committed to supporting the personal and professional development of our team and our readers. We are therefore keen to work with companies that can guide them in the crucial stages of their career.

In return, we endeavour to craft a partnership plan that will best serve your brand and align with your company's aims and ethos. We offer our partners extensive exposure to a wide network of hard-working and talented professionals. In light of current restrictions on traditional in-person recruitment and outreach, we provide the opportunity to connect with students from leading higher education institutions in the UK.

On behalf of the St Andrews Law Review team, I would like to thank you for your kind consideration. We greatly look forward to working with you!

Founder and Editor-in-Chief

ARTICLES

St Andrews Law Review's writers bring with them a range of disciplinary backgrounds, from Neuroscience and International Relations to Human Rights Law and Philosophy. Thanks to their diverse academic perspectives, they shed light on the intersection of law with various other sectors from business and technology to the environment and gender issues.

We have published 150 articles on a range of topics from the legal issues posed by the COVID-19 pandemic and the evolving role of technology in the legal sector to environmental legislation and social media regulation. Our writers also produce monthly Legal News Roundups summarising and critically reflecting on top legal headlines and developments around the world.

We also launched our "Commercial Insight Series" which involves interviews with trainees and lawyers at leading firms such as Freshfields Bruckhaus Deringer, Linklaters, Clifford Chance, Simmons & Simmons and more. This series of articles aims to guide and support aspiring solicitors through their applications and preparation.

To commemorate our first anniversary, the St Andrews Law Review compiled a special Anniversary Issue. Showcasing a selection of articles from the past year, the Issue is a reflection of our writers' critical insight and commentary. From the persecution of the Uyghur population to legislation regulating social media platforms, these articles explore a range of crucial issues.

READERSHIP

Our base at the University of St Andrews in Scotland was ranked the second best university in the UK according to The Guardian's University League Tables 2020. Home to a highly diverse cohort, St Andrews' student body also consists of 41.4% international students from across Europe, the United States, China, Australia, Singapore and more.

Moreover, we have expanded our team - which currently boasts over 60 members - to include contributors from other leading universities across the United Kingdom such as the London School of Economics and Political Science, Queen Mary University of London, University College London, and the Universities of Cambridge, Dundee, Edinburgh and Glasgow.

Partnering with the St Andrews Law Review therefore provides brands exposure to a global audience through our writers and readers. We also offer the ability to connect directly with high-achieving, intelligent and professional individuals who are interested in pursuing law.
